TERMS OF COPYRIGHT OWNERSHIP

This statement describes the terms for your participation in the Human Race/Lovewell Workshop. The staff will participate with you and help you write, perform and produce a piece of musical theatre and video (the "Work"). The work will be a joint creation of the staff, you, and the other participants, based on ideas, characters and stories from the participants' imaginations and experiences.

The Human Race will give you attribution (public credit) for your contributions to the Work in the playbill produced for the performance at the end of the Workshop. Lovewell will attempt to require any third party that purchases or licenses any rights to the Work do the same.

Lovewell retains all right, title and interest, including copyrights, in the Work, and you assign and transfer your contributions in the Work to Lovewell. Also, Lovewell has the right to use your name, likeness, voice and biographical information in order to promote or publicize Lovewell, the Workshop and the Work.

Please note that you assign and transfer any contributions to the Workshop that you may have created entirely on your own. Therefore you should only bring material to the Workshop that you are willing to share and transfer to The Human Race and Lovewell.

I hereby acknowledge my acceptance of the above Release Statements and Terms of Copyright Ownership.
